

Dogtag covers for work and pleasure during business travel

Dogtag, the award-winning travel insurance company for action-minded travellers, has launched a brand new policy for the growing number of people who like to combine work with pleasure while on a business trip abroad.

Dogtag Business has been carefully designed to offer a complete and cost-effective range of cover for people who not only travel abroad on work duty, but like to enjoy some hard-earned leisure time while they are away - whether it is skiing, snowboarding, scuba-diving, sailing or enjoying various other action sports.

With Dogtag Business, the policyholder is provided with a surgical-grade steel dogtag to wear around their neck, on the back of which is engraved their name, unique identification number, and a dedicated web address giving access to the policyholder's next of kin details, blood type, current medication and allergies.

The individual can then be safe in the knowledge that should they get into difficulty - whether at work or at play - emergency services will not only have access to all their vital personal information, but they will instantly be able to prove to a medic or clinic that they are fully insured. The Dogtag also carries a 24/7 medical rescue telephone number.

Dogtag Business has been developed with close consultation from the corporate travel community to identify its precise requirements. Dogtag Business will pay up to £1,000 for accidental loss, theft or damage to business equipment, as well as equipment replacement hire of up to £50 per day. The policy also provides up to £200 for emergency courier expenses to replace the business equipment.

Furthermore, should the individual fall sick and be unable to carry out their business duties, they will be covered for up to £1,500 to transport and accommodate a replacement employee. Meanwhile, business travellers who have their money stolen while abroad are covered for up to £1,000.

For those who wish to enjoy some sporting activity while on their business trip, they will automatically be covered for hundreds of popular sports. For more risky activities all they have to do is top up their insurance to Sport+ or Extreme levels.

This all comes on top of the standard Dogtag travel insurance policy which features competitive rates of cover for cancellation, lost or delayed luggage, sickness or injury, legal protection and much more.

Director of Dogtag, Mike Welby said: "We identified a growing trend among business travellers who wanted all the trappings of business travel insurance cover, but also wanted to top-up their policy to allow them to enjoy some of the sporting activities their destination has to offer. The result is Dogtag Business – an insurance policy which we are fully confident will meet all the requirements of the modern business traveller."
